ASYLUM CASES

Dismissed on Demurrer and Officials Are Exonerated.

Other Court Matters of More or Less Interest Passed Upon.

All of the cases known as the "asylum cases" came up in circuit court Saturday on a general demurrer and were dismissed. The case against J. C. Buckner was dismissed permanently and the others with leave to resubmit to the next grand jury. The cases in detail were as follows:

Secretary J. C. Buckner, of the coal firm of Buckner & West, charged with having a contract to furnish coal to the asylum.

Treasurer L. H. Davis, with having a contract to do the stone work on the new additions to the asylum.

Judge C. H. Bush, commissioner, with accepting law fees in cases in which he represented the asylum.

M. H. Carroll, commissioner, with selling farm products to the asylum.

Frank M. Quarles, president of the board, with selling hay and corn to the asylum.

Mario Johnson, commissioner, of the cattle dealing firm of Ford & Johnson, with selling beef cattle to the asylum.

John B. Chilton, commissioner, filling the position of farm superintendent at the asylum.

All of these officials were indicted for malfeasance in office. Dr. Board, superintendent, originally included in one of the joint indictments, was relieved of the charge against him, soon after the indictments were returned.

These indictments were all returned upon testimony given before the grand jury by Dr. W. A. Lackey.

The indictment returned against Dr. Lackey for assaulting a patient named Spegal Bourland, has not been disposed of.

Will Payne, col., charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, came up in court Friday on demurrer. The demurrer was sustained and the case dismissed. Payne, however, was held to await the action of the next grand jury. Bail was fixed at $100, but bond had not been furnished up to yesterday.

The jury in the case of Polly Wallace and Georgia Jackson, both colored, under indictment for house breaking, returned a verdict of guilty. Polly was given two years in the penitentiary and Georgia one year. They were charged with robbing the dwelling of Tad Courtney, who lives about five miles from the city, of clothing, bedding, etc., several months ago. Polly Wallace is about 70 years old. A motion to set aside the verdict has been filed by the attorney for the woman.

Charles Tucker, colored, was convicted of grand larceny and his punishment fixed at 2½ years in the penitentiary. Tucker was charged with robbing F. O. Smith son of a sum of money. William Gwynn, col., who was charged with the same offense, was acquitted.

The case of Robert Lewis, col., charged with murder, was continued until the spring term. Bond was fixed at $500. Lewis furnished bail and was released.

The trial of Sam Wallace, col., indicted for house breaking, resulted in a hung jury.

Boys Play With Gun and Weapon

Is Discharged.

While two little sons of Abner Carter, col., were playing with an old gun Sunday the weapon was accidentally discharged and the load took effect in the neck of one of the boys causing a wound that may prove fatal.

Carter lives on the Madisonville road, about three miles from the city. He and his wife were at church when the accident happened.

FARMERS TO SIGN

The Tobacco Agreement at the Polls Next Tuesday.

Plan By Which Every Farmer Who Votes Can Be Invited To Sign.

Col. E. D. Jones, chairman of the county organization of the Farmers Dark Tobacco District Association, has hit upon a novel and well-planned scheme to organize the farmers in the fight against the tobacco trust, that robbed them of half the value of the crop of 1903. The plan is set forth in the following:

Notice to Farmers.

All farmers are requested and urged to sign the tobacco agreement papers, which will be at every voting place next Tuesday. Vote and then don't forget to sign the antitrust agreement. A man will be every poll with a paper for signatures.

E. D. JONES, Chairman.

This plan is an excellent one. Many have already signed and every man who has a crop to sell will thus be invited to unite with his neighbors in an agreement not to give his crop away this year. Vote and then sign, or sign and then vote, just as you prefer.

Have You Registered?

If not, to-morrow is your last chance, provided you were sick or away on October 4. Otherwise you are not in it this year.

Smallpox Patient.

A colored woman living in the Beverly neighborhood, who developed a case of smallpox a day or so ago, was brought to the pest house yesterday.

Ophthalmoscope and Retinoscope - Combined.

An up-to-date instrument for the diagnosis of the pathological condition of the interior of the eye without the use of a dark room or mydriatics to dilate the pupil. By its use all errors of refraction are detected and measured to an absolute certainty, without asking the patient any questions—thereby leaving the operator independent of the intelligence of the patient. (Great for children.) It is the latest and most wonderful provision for the eye doctor. By its use the retina (veins and arteries), is seen as clearly as the optic nerve. This is a costly instrument, but as I have been always deeply interested, and made a specialty of examining and fitting of glasses to the eye, I have kept up to date with the latest and best methods and instruments and feel that the best is none too good for my patrons. They may rest assured that they will get the latest and best service obtainable anywhere—derived from long years of practical experience with up-to-date appliances and for the least money.

Respectfully,

M. D. KELLY.

COMMENCEMENT DAY.

Again the little schoolhouse tooms
A clink of seeming life and joy,
Again the door is open wide
To the bright sun and the bright boy,
There's buzzing in the hallway where
The little dinner plates have landed
Like a flock of birds from the trees,
From ports with beaches golden sand'd.

The dainty napkin pantaloons
Vie with the knickerbockers cutting
Across the narrow aisle the while
The short-legged d' d' nats are afoot
To the schoolroom, where the schoolroom song
There on the old blockboard it's screed—
Ah! Time you never can erase it—
This is the day of the commencement.

“Ah me, again I turn to face it,
There on the front row touching toes
Upon the door—feet cannot reach it—
The short-legged d' d' nats are afoot
To the schoolroom, where the schoolroom song
There on the old blockboard it's screed—
Ah! Time you never can erase it—
This is the day of the commencement.

The quieting feet are stilled at last,
Each whispered message has been

Spoken—
The quieting taps on his desk
With his grin awe-inspiring token,
Then all clear for the schoolroom song stands;

With it comes a thrill and interest,
He holds the key to one the door.

The old-time country schoolroom commences—
Silence—Silence—Silence.

—Silence—Silence—Silence.

PALMISTRY.

BY A. A. MILNE.

Alone James did it. I have told him since that I owe him a debt of gratitude which I never, never can repay. His reply, that he would rather I owed him something which I could repay, touched me deeply, but had no other immediate result.

I must give you his name in full: James Arthur Brocklebank. Perhaps some day will find me teaching my children to kiss that dear name at their mother's knee. This is what they do in novels, though I should not think "Brocklebank" allows of much scope for kissing. Still, there it is.

It was at a fancy bazaar. Most of us at the hall were helping in some way. Our dear hostess was selling—what are those things that ladies buy?—while her daughters had sweet and scent and tobacco stalls and so forth. I thought at first that I was the only unemployed one until James strolled up.

"Hello," he said; "you're doing nothing."

"I wanted to help," I explained. "My idea was to keep a tobacconist's stall, and then one could smoke cigarettes all the time. The assistants in shops always do that to advertise their goods."

"Oh, and I suppose assistants in sweet shops eat sweets all the time?"

"Of course."

"Have you ever thought," said James reflectively, "what a tired time the right-hand man of a butcher must have?"

"Look here," I said, "did you come to talk got like that to me?"

"No; I want you to have your fortune told. There's a palmist here."

"But I haven't a fortune."

"You don't want one. Half a grown's enough."

"I went with blue under protest. It was a very dark tent into which we plumped, and I could see no fortune teller."

"Where is she?" I asked, impatiently.

"The other side of the curtain," said James; "but you mustn't go in. You put your hand through there, and she is on the other side. Of course, if she saw you it would spoil everything."

"Who is it?"

"Never mind."

I put my hand through. Some one took it, and it seemed as though she were going over the lines of my palm with a pencil.

"Don't do that—please," I said. "It tickles."

There was a light laugh from behind the curtain.

"You are very ticklish," said a voice.

"That isn't palmistry," I remonstrated.

"You are also quick-tempered, slow-minded, thin-skinned—"

"Fat-headed, go on!" I said, bitterly. "Just you wait till I see you."

"I'm awfully sorry," said the voice. "I don't think I have the right hand."

"Of course you haven't. It's the left."

"Yes, that's right. Oh, I see! I was looking at it upside down. You are modest, clever, athletic and of an artistic temperament."

James laughed unkindly.

"Did you laugh?" asked a voice. "Certainly not!" I replied. "I wouldn't think of such a thing. But you're only saying things I know already. Won't you tell me my future?"

"You will be married within a year."

I gasped.

"Did you gasp?" asked a voice. "That was the impression I intended to convey. But are you sure?"

"Quite, quite sure. The line of the heart says so."

"Heart lines, old chap?" said Jim, nudging me.

"What hat did you say?" asked the voice.

"Nothing," I answered. "What you heard was a hitherto honored and respected friend being kicked. But I say, tell me. When shall I be engaged?"

"Before the end of the week."

"Hi! Jim, quick!" I shrieked. "What's the day now?"

"The thirteenth," said Jim.

I shot a glance of scorn and loathing at him.

"Sorry, old man," he said, hurriedly. "It's Saturday."

"Why—good Lord—then I shall get engaged to-night?"

"Why not?" asked Jim.

"Why not? You idiot! She's not even in the house. She's in London."

"Who is?"

"Who?—why—Oh, nobody. You see what I mean? There's nobody in the house that—"

"It's no good," said James, with a grin.

"You've given yourself away."

I turned back to the curtain.

"Are you still there?" I asked.

"Are you there, are you there, are you there, are you—?"

"I've finished, thank you," came the voice.

"But are you quite sure about being engaged by the end of the week?"

"Quite, quite sure," said the voice a little shakily.

James and I were silent.

"Who is she?" I asked. "I didn't recognize the voice."

"O, she'd take good care about that."

"Well, anyhow, it's impossible."

We entered the refreshment tent and drank things. Jim tried to be facetious about my rapidly approaching engagement. He even misquoted poetry to me. Things about love and so on.

"Did you make that up yourself?" I said, wearily. "It's very bad."

"Why, it's Shakespeare, man," he said, indignantly.

"O, thought it was you."

"I don't mind having it," he said, and ordered a third drink. "Kindly observe the new Swan of Avon."

"Are swans such great drinkers? I don't know."

"You're in a nasty, horrid temper, and I shall leave you," said Brocklebank.

I watched him go through the door of the tent. Some one was coming up. He went on and spoke to her. It was a lady. He came back with her and brought her up to me. Good Lord! It was Kate!"

"He'll give you tea," said James.

"I must go. Good by."

He raised his hat and went off.

"It is impossible," I said.

"Well, what's the matter?" asked Kate. "Aren't you glad to see me?"

"Go away. You're in London."

"I've just this moment come. You knew I was coming, didn't you?"

"No, I've hardly seen anyone. I've only just come myself. Why, what train?"

"Never mind the train," said some one hurriedly; "I want some tea."

We had tea. All the time I was wondering if I dared "to put it to the touch, to wia or losse it." At last I took out a penny and tossed it. If it turned tail, why, then, so would I. But if not—

"Heads?" said Kate.

"It is. That settles it. After all, who am I to blast the reputation of a respectable and, for aught I know, beautiful palmist?"

"I don't know what you are talking about," complained Kate.

"Kate," I said, impressively, "it's written on my hand—and I showed her my hand—that I shall get engaged to-day."

"What is that they call short-hand?"

"It's palmistry. The line of the heart has done something exuberant."

"Well, I hope she'll have you," said Kate.

"You should ask her."

"I am," I said, and I took her hand. "Dear, do you think she will?"

"I don't know," said Kate, looking down. "Perhaps she might."

"I'm not sure she will."

"Quite, quite sure," said a voice.

Something in the words struck me. She looked up at me with a smile. Then I began to understand.

"Kate!" I cried.

"Isn't it a beautiful day?" said Kate—Black and White.

HABITS OF THE JAGUAR.

Interesting Chapter on the Most Stealthy and Ferocious of Felines.

The trails of the jaguar are many, but they nearly all lead to a river, for water appears to be more needful to the tiger than to any other member of the cat family. And this is not that he actually drinks more, so far as I can learn, says a writer in Outing, but rather because along the waterways he finds an easy and abundant food in the river hog, in the small deer that come down to drink and in the fish that swim plentifully in all these streams.

In the Rio de la Plata, just off Buenos Ayres, is an island where at one time a number of jaguars had resided and thrived practically on the fish they caught, for there was nothing else on the island, and none ever heard of their visiting the mainland, because of its remoteness and not on account of the distance to shore, for the tiger is a strong, bold swimmer and minds no river of South America, not the widest, if he wishes to reach the opposite bank. He is a patient, unerring fisherman, watching for long periods from some vantage point, which may be either a fallen tree trunk extending into the stream or at the bank's edge, until a victim appears—when with a lightning blow he hurls the fish out on to the bank or clutches it as he swims past.

While the swampy jungle and the water courses are his habitat, yet the jaguar will make incursions upon dry ground if cattle or horses or poultry offer, and river food happens to be scarce or for the time being more difficult to secure. I heard several trustworthy accounts of cattle and colts killed by the jaguar, though his ravages are not so frequent as once they were owing to his further inland habitat. His method of killing animals of this size is literally to stalk them up wind, that no scent may reach the victim, and then to spring on them from behind, fastening teeth and claws in the neck; with smaller animals the jaguar springs for the neck at once, and appears to prefer the hind quarters to the stomach, which is left for the vultures that are omnipresent in the open country.

Tigre is a much noisier animal than any other of the feline family, particularly at night, and roams the jungle disdainful of other beasts in his manifest superiority. And he is without doubt the absolute king of the South African forest; there is literally none to dispute his domain, none even worthy to do him homage, for the puma, which is fairly plentiful, has as little courage of his convictions in South as in North America.

He Knew His Business. A lady going through a hospital during the last war saw a couple of soldiers sawing and hammering and said: "What are you doing?" "Making a coffin; that's all." "A coffin, indeed, and who is it for?" "That fellow over there," pointing to a cot. The lady looked and saw that the man was alive and watching what was going on. "Why," she said, in a low voice, "that man is not dead, and perhaps he won't die." "Oh, yes," insisted one of the men, "the doctor told us to make the coffin and I guess he know'd what he giv' him."

Great Country for Wheat. The delta of the Tigris and the Euphrates, now partially a desert and partially a swamp, contains over 5,000,000 acres of land. Perhaps no region of all the regions of the earth is more favored by nature for the production of cereals. It is claimed that wheat in its wild, uncultivated state has its home in the semiarid regions, and that from there it has been transported to every quarter of the globe.

BIRDS OF PERFECT FLIGHT

The Only Ones Are the Larger Species
Which Sway and Soar in the Air Indefinitely.

In the past few years the desire of mankind to discover a means for navigating the air has led to a deep study of the flights of birds and a great deal of material has been gathered, says Nature.

It is beginning to be the consensus of opinion that the bird world as a whole is not nearly perfect in its attainment of flight.

All birds that have to flap their wings continually, such as sparrows, finches, thrushes, crows and so on, are still in an imperfect stage.

More advanced are such birds as pigeons, swallows, etc., because they can dart ahead for a space after they have gained a good start by the rapid flapping of the pinions.

But the only perfect fliers are the eagles, vultures, albatrosses and other great fowl that can rise and fall, sway and soar in the air indefinitely without moving their wings perceptibly.

Now, how do these big birds manage to ascend to great heights without flapping their wings? It is certain that such birds as the eagle and the vulture can soar into the air gradually till they disappear from the eye of the beholder, and yet it will be quite impossible to denote a single motion of anything except the tail.

One observer, Erich Hoffman, had an unusual opportunity to gather facts that bear on this question. Two years ago he was in the Caucasus on a mountain peak that ascended close to another one. Over the latter there soared a great eagle, and, far below, was from earth, he was quite close to Mr. Hoffman.

When he was seen first he was hanging almost motionless in the air. Suddenly he moved swiftly about, pointing his head slightly toward the sky, and thus glided along without flapping a wing till his motion had ceased of itself. As it stopped, he lifted his wings high in the air, dropped his head and permitted himself to fall.

As soon as he had fallen a short distance, his broad pinions spread out to their fullest extent again and immediately the impetus gained by the fall sent him gliding onward and upward, so that within a few moments he had actually slid upon the air to a position higher than he had been in before.

After he had done this five times he had ascended so high without flying once that the observer could see him only as a black speck in the air.

The eagle's method was exactly that of a boy who slides down a hill in a wagon, and thus gets enough speed to carry him up the next hill. Only in the eagle's case his hills were of air.

Soldiers' Superstitions.

Among the numerous superstitions of the Cossacks there is none stronger than the belief that they will enter Heaven in a better state if they are personally clean at the time they are killed. Consequently, before an expected battle they perform their toilets with scrupulous care, dress themselves in clean garments and put on the best they have. This superstition is not confined to the Cossacks alone, but is widely prevalent, it is said, in all branches of the Russian army.

Whales Live for Centuries.

It is believed that the whale holds the palm for length of years. A reliably correct computation puts the extreme age of the largest whale at 400 years. It is said that in India elephants have been known to live for over 300 years. Certain species of birds, as the swan and raven, pass the 100-year mark; camels sometimes live 50 years, horses from 20 to 30. Sheep, oxen and dogs have less vitality. It is seldom that a dog lives longer than 15 years.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Hopkinsville Household Will Find Them So.

To have pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comfort to hundreds of Hopkinsville readers.

Mrs. J. T. Johnson, wife of J. T. Johnson, superintendent of streets, living at 616 N. Main street says: "During the latter part of last summer I noticed growing upon me a dull ache in my back, which increased until finally the pain became so severe that I was hardly able to walk around, and many times could not attend to my household duties. The trouble I believe came from the kidney, and I suffered from other distressing symptoms of this complaint. I was subject to the most severe headaches and frequent attacks of dizziness. I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and my bus band got a box for me. Thomas & Anderson's drug store. They did a wonderful job of good. I do not know what I should have done if it had not been for Doan's Kidney Pills."

LET'S BEGIN NEXT TUESDAY.

With only one more week until election, it is time for Democrats to shake off their apathy and bestir themselves to get out the full Democratic vote. Of course Kentucky is a certain State for Parker, but the majority should be rolled up to such proportions that we will hear no more claims that Kentucky is doubtful under any circumstances. Here in Christian county, there are nearly 4,000 Democrats and there are many reasons why all of them who are able to go to the polls should do so next Tuesday. We want a show of strength for the local fight to come up next year. The Republican majority used to be as high as 1380 in Christian county. Last year it was 1019, with many Democrats dissatisfied. This time there are no dissatisfied Democrats. Every man who ever voted a Democratic ticket will probably vote for Parker. The Republicans have lost at least 200 negro voters this year, who have moved to other States. The Democrats are stronger and the Republicans weaker than they have been in this county for years. On a clean-cut, party show down, we do not believe the Republicans have more than 500 majority in Christian county. Every town in the county shows a registered Democratic majority except Crofton. If Democrats will make even half an effort they can cut down the Republican majority this year to a few hundred and make the victory of next year an easy one. The Republicans may as well understand now, as any other time that the Democrats propose to have a house-cleaning on Court-house hill next year. Get ready, Democrats, to show them next Tuesday that Democrats are once more united and are ready to begin right now a battle for supremacy that will not cease until Christian county is no longer a Republican county.

The Republicans, as usual, are claiming the whole earth, just as they did in the Presidential elections of 1884 and 1892. The time is ripe for them to be mistaken again.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed the ear is not able to receive sound or perfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous membranes.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

The North Sea incident is now undergoing investigation by a neutral tribunal. The disposition to ridicule the Russian Admiral's explanation because Japanese torpedo boats were discovered among them, is unjust. Suppose investigation discloses the fact that torpedoes had been used at Hull? It is a well known fact that Japan will try to destroy the fleet before it reaches the scene of war. This is known to the Russian Admiral and he cannot be blamed for exercising "external vigilance," even though it may lead him into mistakes. The Baltic fleet is composed of thirty-seven ships. Six are battleships, two armored cruisers, two protected cruisers first-class; one second class and three third class; twelve are destroyers and the rest auxiliary cruisers, transports, repair ships and colliers. It is one of the largest fleets that ever went to sea. It will take 110,000 tons of coal to steam to Port Arthur. The money value of the fleet is $66,000,000. The ships must coal on the African coast and again after passing through the Red Sea. Then they can go to Sumatra and take on enough to carry them to the Philippines. From there on it will be a matter of fighting a superior fleet. Japan has about 60 war vessels that will be available by the time the fleet reaches the Pacific ocean. The remnant of the Vladivostok squadron is now frozen up for the winter in the Siberian harbor and the Port Arthur squadron is penned up and helpless. Japan's friendly informers everywhere and Admiral Rojestvensky has cause to be watchful and suspicious. He will likely find many torpedo boats in his pathway, even before he reaches the battleships of the enemy. Despite his vigilance, the chances are that he will never reach the Yellow sea.

Miss Pauline Astor, daughter of William Wardrope Astor, the millionaire who founded the United States so small for him and moved to London, was married Saturday to Capt. Spender-Clay. The wedding was so well that it took four or five preachers to perform the ceremony. His filly lute is represented in England by the word Clay, the hyphenated name of the bridegroom indicates what he will do with the bride's fortune.

Senator Fairbanks delivered one of his celebrated cold storage speeches in Louisville Saturday afternoon. He was introduced by Col. W. O. Bradley and created such enthusiasm that every member of the reception committee applauded when hit by his cold blasts. Fortunately for the audience, Senator Icebanks orated at noon, the warmest hour of a mild October day, and no ears or noses were frozen off during his remarks.

The Republicans are showing panicky conditions as the campaign nears its end, and the President has ordered out his last reserve of speakers, Cortelyou, Hay, Root and Cox, the latter the special pet of the big trusts. New York is now regarded as safe for Parker and the speeches of Judge Parker this week are expected to make New Jersey and Connecticut all right. Taggart says Indiana will do her duty and there is no trouble in Maryland or Delaware. Davis is looking after West Virginia and even Rhode Island must be vigorously defended. Come on, boys, let's kick 'em!

A commission appointed by the Cortes has recommended the abolition of Sunday bull fighting in Spain and King Alfonso is overwhelmed by petitions and protests. The managers threaten to close the bull rings if not allowed to run them on Sunday.

Several enthusiastic meetings were held in the State Saturday and the Democratic party seems well prepared for the contest next Tuesday. There is no excitement, but interest is not lacking and a heavy vote may be looked for in Kentucky. Let the Second District give Parker and Davis an old fashioned majority of 5,000 or 6,000.

Guthrie now has two weekly papers. The Interstate-News is published on Saturday by L. W. Gaines and the old Courier has been revived by H. A. Garmon and Vernon D. Lake and is issued on Thursday. It will be a foolish test of endurance, as there is barely room for our paper in Guthrie.

THE LOT OF A ZUNI BABY.

No. Downy Pillows or Silken Wraps. Lend Comfort to the Infant's Days.

The Zuni child spends his early days in a cradle. But a cradle in Zuni-land does not mean down pillows, silken coverlets and fluffy lace, writes Maria Brack Kimball, in "The Children of Zuni," in St. Nicholas; it is only a flat board, just the length of the baby, with a hood like a doll's buggy top over the head. Upon this hard bed the baby is bound like a mummy—the coverings wound round and round him until the little fellow cannot move except to open his mouth and eyes. Sometimes he is unrolled, and looks out into the bare whitewashed room, blinks at the fire burning on the hearth and fixes his eyes earnestly on the wolf and cougar skins that serve as chairs and beds and carpets in the Zuni home. By the time he is two or three years old he has grown into a plump little bronze creature, with the straightest of coarse black hair and the biggest and roundest of black eyes. He is now out of the cradle, and trots about the house and the village. When the weather is bad he wears a small coarse shirt, and always a necklace of beads or turquoise.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

On Question of Providing a Sewerage System for the City of Hopkinsville, Kentucky.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in the City of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, on the regular election day, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1904, at the regular hours for holding elections, as provided by law, for the purpose of taking the sense of the qualified electors of said city upon the proposition whether the said City of Hopkinsville shall incur an indebtedness of fifty thousand dollars, ($50,000) for the purpose of constructing a system of sewers for said city, which shall be submitted to said electors at the general election as follows—"ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF THE CITY OF HOPKINSVILLE, KENTUCKY, INCURRING INDEBTEDNESS OF FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS, ($50,000) FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF A SEWERAGE SYSTEM WITHIN AND BY SAID CITY?" The amount of money necessary to be raised annually by municipal taxation to meet yearly interest charges arising by reason of the incurring of said indebtedness and to create a sinking fund required by law to liquidate said indebtedness will be $4,500.

Second.—That notice of this election, which notice shall contain this ordinance in full, shall be published for two weeks next prior to the day of election in the Daily Kentucky New Era, a daily newspaper published in and of general circulation in the city of Hopkinsville; also in the Hopkinsville Kentuckian, a semi-weekly newspaper published in and of general circulation in the city of Hopkinsville; also in the Hopkinsville Independent, a weekly newspaper published in and of general circulation in the city of Hopkinsville; and also in the Hopkinsville Messenger, a weekly newspaper published in and of general circulation in the city of Hopkinsville; and by posting printed notices of said election at ten public places in the City of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, for two weeks next before the day of election herein provided for.

That such notice shall specify the amount of the indebtedness proposed to be incurred, the purpose or purposes of same, and the amount of money necessary to be raised annually by taxation for an interest and sinking fund. Such notice shall further provide that if upon the canvass of the votes cast at such election it shall appear that two-thirds (2/3) of the qualified electors of the City of Hopkinsville, voting on said question, shall have voted in favor of incurring such an indebtedness, it shall be the duty of the Board of Council of said city to pass an ordinance providing for the mode of creating such an indebtedness, and of paying the same by the levy and collection of an annual tax upon real and personal property, subject to taxation within the City of Hopkinsville, sufficient to pay the interest on such indebtedness as it falls due, and also to constitute a sinking fund for the payment of the principal thereof within a period of not more than twenty years from the time of contracting same.

The polls will be opened and votes received at Hopkinsville voting precinct No. 1: Hopkinsville voting precinct No. 2: Hopkinsville voting precinct No. 3: Hopkinsville voting precinct No. 4: and Hopkinsville voting precinct No. 5, said places being respectively the regular voting places in the five city precincts.

The election will be held pursuant to an ordinance of the Board of Council of the City of Hopkinsville, made and adopted at its meeting held on the 26th day of September, 1904, and which ordinance is in words and figures as follows:

"ORDINANCE."

Whereas, Many of our citizens have expressed a strong and urgent desire that the City of Hopkinsville should construct and maintain a sewerage system within said city, for the reason that the best interest of the city and its residents demand that such sewerage system be without delay constructed and maintained; that same will be conducive to cleanliness and good sanitation, a preventive of disease and designed for the general promotion of health, as it will also greatly add to the domestic comfort and convenience of the people, and many important municipal advantages gained; and whereas this Board has had under consideration the question as to the construction and maintenance of such sewer for the City of Hopkinsville, and think it proper that the voters of the city should have opportunity to express their views upon this most important municipal question.

Be it ordained by the Board of Council of the City of Hopkinsville, in the State of Kentucky:

First.—That the Board of Council of the City of Hopkinsville, deeming it necessary to incur an indebtedness of Fifty Thousand Dollars, ($50,000.00) for the purpose of constructing a system of sewers for the City of Hopkinsville, and the payment of which indebtedness cannot be met without exceeding the income and revenue provided for said city for this year, 1904, and cannot be met out of the revenue for the current fiscal year, it is hereby ordered that an election by the qualified electors of the City of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, be held in said city on the regular election day on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1904, at the regular hours for holding election, and at the regular precinct polling places within said city for such election, as provided by law, for the purpose of taking the sense of the qualified voters of said city on the following question, which shall be submitted to said electors, at the general election, to wit:—"Are you in favor of the City of Hopkinsville incurring an indebtedness of Fifty Thousand Dollars, ($50,000) for the construction of a sewerage system within and by said city?"

The amount of money necessary to be raised annually by municipal taxation to meet yearly interest charges arising by reason of the incurring of said indebtedness, and to create a sinking fund required by law to liquidate said indebtedness will be $4,500.00.

Second.—That notice of this election, which notice shall contain this ordinance in full, shall be published for two weeks next prior to the day of election in the Daily Kentucky New Era, a daily newspaper published in and of general circulation in the city of Hopkinsville; also in the Hopkinsville Kentuckian, a semi-weekly newspaper published in and of general circulation in the city of Hopkinsville; also in the Hopkinsville Independent, a weekly newspaper published in and of general circulation in the city of Hopkinsville; and also in the Hopkinsville Messenger, a weekly newspaper published in and of general circulation in the city of Hopkinsville; and by posting printed notices of said election at ten public places in the City of Hopkinsville, Kentucky, for two weeks next before the day of election herein provided for.

That such notice shall specify the amount of the indebtedness proposed to be incurred, the purpose or purposes of same, and the amount of money necessary to be raised annually by taxation for an interest and sinking fund. Such notice shall further provide that if upon the canvass of the votes cast at such election it shall appear that two-thirds (2/3) of the qualified electors of the city, voting on said question, shall have voted in favor of incurring such an indebtedness, it shall be the duty of the Board of Council of said city to pass an ordinance providing for the mode of creating such an indebtedness, and of paying the same by the levy and collection of an annual tax upon real and personal property, subject to taxation within the City of Hopkinsville, sufficient to pay the interest on such indebtedness as it falls due, and also to constitute a sinking fund for the payment of the principal thereof within a period of not more than twenty years from the time of contracting same.

Third.—That the notice of said election, which notice shall contain this ordinance in full, shall be signed by the Mayor of the City of Hopkinsville and by the Clerk of this Board of Council.
